The Cathedral’s Gardens continued to serve as a Haven of Peace during the second Pandemic Year

During this challenging time, the 57 acres of gardens, grounds and woodlands surrounding Washington National Cathedral have remained open to the public.

While the pandemic hampered our primary fundraising efforts, we continued to work hard to keep our friends close to us by expanding virtual access to the Bishop's Garden through an on-line tour and podcast, both of which can be accessed HERE.

We can’t wait to see you in person in the future, but in the meantime, please enjoy a look back at 2021 via YouTube:
